Can the pet care facility prevent my dog from bloating?

Most pet care facilities take precautions to not overfeed or let pets drink excessive amounts of water. If aware of a hereditary problem, special observation notes may be made. Dogs are exercised well before or after meals. Even with careful precautions and diligent observation, GDV may occur. In a boarding environment, bloating seems to occur with a higher frequency at night or in the early morning hours. Even facilities with live-in staff will have dogs suffer from a bloating incidence. You have a right for your pet care facility to provide the best possible care, just as the pet care facility has a right to expect you to UWWdhAbUbVJUAYgdcbgV]]mAcfAj VAAUYA 8J AUbAYA an expensive medical condition, so discuss guidelines for xblubVJUAYgdcbgV]]mAc fAihAVUYAUMV]]mAU UYfA and be sure to leave an emergency number where you can be reached.
